

Small Volume Grain Mills

As farmers, gardeners, and consumers have shown increased interest in preparing their own grain flour from whole seeds, Jefferson Institute staff conducted an Internet search of products that can serve as table-top grain grinders. The Institute has not tested these products, and listing the companies here does not constitute an endorsement.

The following list includes a variety of websites that sell both electric and hand crank grain mills. Mills are available at a variety of prices. Hand crank mills range in price from $40-$325, while electric mills are available for $160-$430. Both stone and steel mills are available. Operation speeds vary from model to model from 1-4 minutes per cup of flour, and hopper capacities vary from 2-7 pounds. Additionally, various attachments, which allow the mills to grind larger seeds such as coffeebeans or even grind meat are available for purchase.
